

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A relationship between first configuration information concerning a configuration of a first network layer and second configuration information concerning a configuration of a second network layer is managed. If there is a change in the configuration, the first configuration information and the second configuration information is automatically updated. For example, when the configuration of the first network layer is changed, the second network layer is instructed to change the configuration of the second network layer.

10